HELPING HANNAH

Hannah König helps wherever and whenever she can; of course in her job as social worker, but also in the bridal fashion boutique belonging to her mother, who is in hospital after being involved in a traffic accident. Hannah also takes care of her mother's client, Jenny Hofer, who is a compulsive gambler, but keeps this a secret from her groom. After so much devotion, the power woman has very little time for her daughter and her freshly founded patchwork family, together with her partner and policeman Barney and his son. Barney is annoyed and advises Hannah to stop her "helping hand syndrome" and to take more care of herself and their mutual future ...
