COUCH CONNECTIONS

I took a nine-month journey through North America and Asia. Hostels were scarce. So what I did instead was sleep in the living rooms of complete strangers. In other words, I couch-surfed. Such a journey not only impacts the traveller but also the hosts and the new acquaintances. "Couch Connections" is a very authentic documentary that beautifully captures these experiences. The main focus of the film is the people who participate in couch-surfing and their great diversity. My hosts couldn't have been more different from each other: from a 21-year-old student in a dorm to a family in which three generations take part in couch-surfing to a nudist in Manhattan and a transgender in Bangkok.
